LA FOLLETTE LEADERS READ HANDWRITINGS

EVEN HATTON STARTS IN ON A MODERATE REFORM BASIS.

PEOPLE ARE AROUSED

Gathering at Darlington During Past Week Forebodes Similar Gatherings Later.

N. D. This is one of a series of articles written exclusively for the Gazette on Wisconsin politics.

(By Bob Acres.) That the tax levies in working is evidenced by the fact that our friend Hatton climbs onto the step ladder to announce that he believes that the state affairs could be managed much more economically than at present. It is the voice of the little "boss" you may be certain, but officially he will not appear on the surface of the political stream. He is too clever for that, but here is the grand opportunity to discredit McGovern and his immediate followers to be allowed to pass by unnoticed.

Meanwhile we find La Follette himself making another of his favorite attacks upon the railroad. He would fix the railroads and start after this miraculous increase in the state taxes he might stand in better with his former constituents, the "God's patient poor" who are suffering from the excessive taxation his administration of state affairs has left as a legacy. But now he fights like Quixote, the wind mills.

But there is a surprise due Mr. Hatton. Our good friend, Merlin Hull, slipped away to Washington last week and had a long conference with the senator. It may be that Mr. Hull is to be a candidate of the La Follette crowd and not the former aspirant for senatorial honors from New London. Hull is a quiet little chap unless he is roused over the war, the state senate treated his university bill the past two sessions.

We all know where he stands on this subject and it is possible he will give a leading role in the taxation proposition now that Hatton has made his overture to the political audience. Hull is a good campaigner. As speaker of the last assembly he made a splendid record. He has made many friends that will aid him in his campaign. In fact, a lot of republicans of the more conservative stripe, have already promised him their support, which speaks well for his chances.

But where is Roethe to count in. He has bought several pair of cow-hide shoes and proposes to make his campaign a la Weston. Well, out in Dane county several years ago a man named Stoner made a similar campaign for a county office and won out hands down. He might have remained the office too if he had not been getting on other to his neighbor's dog which roused every dog owner in the county against him. Roethe is no out of it by any means, he is a mighty active thorn in the side of the La Follette crowd.

Nor is there any more harmony in the democratic ranks. The wave of Karel sentiment that is sweeping over the state betokens that the Milwaukee just is going to be an active element in the pre-primary campaign. In many cities there are as many republicans as democrats signing the call for his candidacy and it is noticeable that the democrats who refuse to sign are followers of John Aylward and Joe Davies.

Speaking of "Joe and I," I want to whisper something I heard in Madison this week. Brother Wolfe is going to be dumped, dropped like a hot cake, if Hon. A. J. Schultz of Milwaukee can be induced to make the race against Karel. Now Schultz was one of the men present at the "swirl convention" when Davies came on from Washington during the holidays but did not have much to say about the distribution of the various pulls of fluid distributed. He felt a little nervous, perhaps, at any rate he learned that he was not the only favorite in the Aylward "barn cabinet." But now they want Schultz and if he will run it is going to simplify matters.

Ready to think if he does it will simplify matters materially for he never could beat Karel at any time, spot or place. Schultz was created by Dave Rose and while a fine gentleman, is not the sort of a man that appeals to the average voter at all. Why "Whispering" Schultz, the new Milwaukee postmaster even knows that and with Judge Sheridan, Schultz and Schultz as the Milwaukee triumvirate it is all off to Buffalo with the Aylward crowd. Anyone of the three would toss John into the discard if it suited their needs, if they gained control of state affairs.

That convention out in Darlington this past week has done a good deal of great worry to the republican and ultra progressive democrats. They do not understand it. It has been the custom in the past when any organization gathered at Darlington, the state administration or differed with the powers to be, that they were put down as stalwarts. This is a handy name, so they have decided it was a stalwart gathering at Darlington because Jim Monahan had something to do with it.

Jim was a stalwart in years gone by, is one now. Jim held the interior renunciation at Madison so long, he thought he was the whole state, the old time conservative republican party. He offered to run for the United States senate as a republican some years ago, if someone would put up the cash. He would run for governor now if given half a chance, but this convention at Darlington was not Jim's. It was a genuine uprising of the taxpayers, the farmers, and they talked turkey and the question of socialism can not be raised in this connection.

This Darlington gathering was only one of others that will follow and it means lots of worry for the republican and democratic leaders. It may presage a new party, a people's party; an organization composed of men regardless of political creed, who will band together for the purpose of reforming the state along sane lines. This is what hurts. The bosses know it and are worried.

In Winter Pe-ru-na CATARRH TONIC For COUGHS & COLDS

MR. Samuel McKinley, 1215 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo., writes: "I can honestly say that I owe my life to Peru-na. Traveling from town to town, and having to go into all kinds of badly heated buildings, playing my trade as auctioneer, it is only natural that I had colds frequently."

"Last December I contracted a severe cold which, through neglect on my part, settled on my chest. I heard of Peru-na. It helped me, so I cannot praise it too highly."

Those who prefer tablets to liquid medicines can now procure Peru-na in tablet form.

MRS. MUNN HOSTESS AT LUNCHEON TODAY

Gives Elaborate Valentine Party to Members of Philomathian Club. Mrs. W. A. Munn, 332 South Main street, entertained the Philomathian club this afternoon at a Valentine luncheon, which was served at one o'clock and consisted of four courses. The table was handsomely decorated with a large basket of red roses, surrounded with cupid. The favors were small red paper heart baskets, filled with candy hearts. The ladies found their places by matching pieces of cupid and other Valentine day favors which had been sent out.

Heart shaped viands were served and between the second and third courses cupid himself appeared, dressed in red, carrying a basket of telegrams, which were Valentines sent by telegraph to each member. After the luncheon an auction game was given, at which the guests secured wonderful bargains with the aid of St. Valentine, and the balance of the afternoon was spent in playing hearts.

The home was decorated with heart porters and lighted with shaded red lights. The club voted the entertainment a great success.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair and colder tonight and Sunday.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The bread that giveth strength I want to give,
The water pure that bids the thirsty live;
I want to help the fainting day by day;
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

I want to give the oil of joy for tears,
The faith to conquer crowding doubts and fears,
Beauty for ashes may I give away;
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

I want to give good measure running o'er,
And into angry hearts I want to pour
The answer soft that turneth wrath away;
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

I want to give to others hope and faith,
I want to do all that the Master saith;
I want to live aright from day to day;
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.—Anon.

The choice sentiment contained in this little poem, expresses more than a desire to be helpful, because it is suggestive of sacrifice, and inspired by the thought that the mission of life is broader than self or self-service. The most of us are so busy, through all the years of active life, that we spend but little time in thinking about the future, and until brought up by some short turn, we plan and act as though we expected to live forever. The spirit of independence, which cropped out, when as a child we tottered across the floor, resenting all interference, when learning to walk, has developed with the years until we feel able to stand alone and fight the battle of life in every emergency. This is a commendable spirit, and yet the fact remains that the age of dependency knows no age limit, and while more marked at the extremes of childhood and old age, the span which binds the two is never free from obligation.

When a survey is made across the continent for a great railway line, and the work reduced to drawings, showing obstacles to be overcome by the most accessible route, the promoters can go no farther until capital comes to their aid, and capital is alike helpless until labor puts its shoulder to the wheel and under intelligent direction pushes the work to completion. In the work of construction, we depend very largely upon our adopted brothers from across the seas, failing to appreciate the fact that without their aid, but little could be accomplished. The new immigration laws, now being discussed in congress, have much to say about illiteracy as a bar to admission, but President Wilson is wise enough to know that American industrial life is dependent upon foreign-born labor, and so illiteracy will not be seriously considered.

The most of us are not railroad builders and but few of us are interested in railway stocks, but all of us are dependent upon these great transportation companies for the luxuries and many of the comforts of life, to say nothing of the service rendered as common carriers. In all of our complaints about the high cost of living, there is no occasion to complain about the railway companies, for they are furnishing more today for the money than ever before. Restrained by law from advancing rates, which they were compelled to reduce, not many years ago, the competition is now reduced to service, and the luxury of American travel is now reduced to a science.

The overland train, ready for its long journey westward, represents the finished product, and as we climb aboard and enjoy the luxuries of all modern appliances, but little thought or appreciation is given to the fact that years of toil and sacrifice are back of the well-equipped service. Like all other good things, that are so common, nothing attracts attention but the unusual, and so we register a kick, if an hour late, with no thought of thankfulness for the safety and comfort enjoyed.

This is human nature, the world over. We take the good things of life for granted with but little regard for what they cost. This is true of every avenue, and applies to the home as well as to the great outside realm. Familiarity sometimes breeds contempt.

The author of the little poem, introducing this story, recognized the force of the great truth expressed so long ago in the statement that "no man liveth to himself," and so he suggests some of the simple things which may be used to smoothe out some of the rough places along the highway.

The pathway of every life is like a spider's web. It is constantly crossing and re-crossing other lives, and the contact is always helpful or harmful. The life spent in one community for a quarter or half a century—and this is the average life—becomes a part of the warp and woof of that community, and the estimate placed upon such lives by public sentiment is usually correct.

The weaving process develops character as well as reputation, and where the good predominates, community life reflects the influence of individual life, and wholesome laws are respected and obeyed.

There are two classes of weavers. One, and by far the largest, is represented by the involuntary worker, content to drift along, shirking responsibility, and satisfied with any sort of a pattern that may be turned out. Every municipality and many commonwealths suffer through the indifference of this kind of weaver.

It is said, that every kind of government, from the school district to the state and nation, is as good as the people will to have it, and the statement is true, but it would be nearer correct to say that all government is as good as the designers who work to a pattern, will to have it. The city of Kenosha has just turned down the commission form of government. Why? Not because the taxpayers and best class of weavers didn't want it, but because the saloons, and irresponsible element worked unitedly to defeat it.

The state of Wisconsin today is in the meshes of a lot of extravagant and designing reformers, under the leadership of men who have worked for years to a pattern, while the rest of us have drifted along, content to furnish the money.

Many of our erratic national laws are products of the same class of designers, aided by general indifference. The one important thing about it, that we often forget, is, that the fabric is being woven day by day, and we share in the finished product, whether we like it or not.

What the nation, the state, and every community needs, is not more weavers, but more intelligent workers. People who work together unitedly, on a pattern that means more than a hit or miss proposition when completed.

The home is the unit of church, society and community life, and in this sacred precinct the weavers are supposed to work in harmony because love enters into the compact. While there ought to be a pleasant good morning and a word of kindly greeting to everybody along the dusty highway, the home demands more than this because the associations are closer.

There never comes a time in the history of any home, where a spirit of indifference should be tolerated, because the ideal home never grows old. The children may scatter, as they

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Springfield, Mo., Feb. 14.—Friends of Jerry Malone, a railway employee, said to have been sent out of Springfield locked in the tool box of a locomotive after a committee of ten men had horsewhipped him for alleged improper conduct, still were searching for him early today. The police said no action in the matter would be taken until definite information as to Malone's whereabouts could be gathered. Members of the "vigilance committee" told the police yesterday that Malone while out of work had been provided with meals by the wife of a

FREEDPORT DEBATERS DEFEAT LOCAL TRIO

LOCAL AFFIRMATIVE SPEAKERS BEATEN BY ILLINOIS MEN, 3 TO 0.

ARGUE PRESENT LAWS

Desirability of Literacy Test in Restricting Immigration Debated

Jansville's affirmative debating team was defeated by the negative team from Freedport in the first contest of the season in the Beloit college interstate debating league, held at the high school yesterday afternoon. Although the date of the contest was set for the 10th of the month, the decision of the three judges went against the Jansville boys. If the negative team is to remain in the race, it must secure the decision at Madison tonight by the same vote of the judges that gave victory to Freedport. Then the decision will be final and the supremacy of the negative team will be established.

The question of the literacy test as a desirable means of further restricting foreign immigration into the United States, was the subject for debate. Carl Schoof opened the affirmative attack and outlined the constructive argument of his team, pointing out especially the present weakness of the immigration laws which have existed since 1880.

C. Daniels proved an effective speaker for the Freedport team. His main contention was to point out that the percentage of immigration to this country is far lower than in previous years, and that it was decreasing all of the time. He made a brave attempt to settle the slum problem by declaring that the percentage of illiteracy in the poorer sections of the large cities was comparatively small.

George Spohn was vigorous and convincing in the affirmative's second speaker. He refuted Daniels' argument on the slum problem back home. The statistics which my opponent has given you are false," he declared. "The international year book will find figures to show that eighty-five per cent of the illiterates live in the large cities. In Chicago ninety per cent of illiterates are living in slum districts. In Baltimore you will find the percentage reaching seventy-five. Philadelphia is hitting the eighty-five percent mark, while New York is up as high as ninety-five per cent."

B. Langstein continued the negative's arguments. His speech was taken up exclusively with the point that present laws should be enforced. "Why go into new territory and try out new laws, until we are enforcing our own present laws?" asked the speaker. He referred to the inspection process of admitting immigrants, stating that the equipment as not good, in any way, shape or manner. With but eighty-two inspectors inspecting perhaps 4,000 to 10,000 immigrants in a day, you can readily see that the work is far from being a model undertaking. This country has good laws, if they are enforced, and the speaker should have said so.

Karl Frick closed the main arguments for the affirmative. In an oratorical outburst he emphasized that the American people today have set their hearts on the desirable citizen, which should be maintained by excluding from the flood of immigration the mentally undesirable.

F. Zartman closed the negative arguments by continuing the line of thought of the second speaker on the matter of enforcing present laws and regulations. He denied that it was only the persons who can read and write who are the desirable citizen.

A storm of contradictions characterized the rebuttal arguments of both sides. Spohn asked the negative to benefit the country by admitting a native-born citizen. Frick summed up the arguments of his side in an oratorical speech, and the Freedport boys stood their ground firmly, going over their contentions at the end of the evening.

It was an interesting clash and each side did creditable work.

The judges for the debate were: Prof. D. Crawford, Beloit College; F. J. Caskey, Beloit, and Prof. J. M. O'Neal, of Wisconsin University. Stowe Lowrey acted as chairman and Mr. Breed of Freedport as timer.

STUDYING NEW ROAD BUILDING MATERIAL

Mayor Fathers and Engineer Kerch Attend National Conference on Concrete Street Construction.

For the purpose of gaining information of the success of the modern concrete of cement highways and the determining their value for city construction, Mayor James A. Fathers and City Engineer C. V. Kerch attended the National Conference on Concrete Road Building, which is being held at Chicago, for the last three days. The Jansville officials were present at the banquet held at the Auditorium last night, and Mr. Kerch remained over today for the purpose of studying of the methods of concrete construction.

The extension of the use of concrete in the building of roads and highways has gained rapid strides during the last few years and the Chicago conference was held for the purpose of bringing together those concerned with the highway improvement and furthering of a single type of highway construction.

The state and national government have been eliminating the need of years for better highways and the necessity for good streets and roads under present-day traffic is a wide demand. Mayor Fathers declared that the city of Jansville is in favor throughout the state and that the city officials will carefully consider their use in future improvements in this city.

The cement road average cost is figured at $1.50 per square yard, but at $2.00 and macadam, the lowest, at one dollar.

Jansville is in need of improved streets and the concrete construction has been given the nod by the city council and city engineer before the kind of material to be used will be decided upon. The greatest trouble experienced with concrete streets is the expansion and contracting of the material. Cement engineers of national fame, at the Chicago conference, declared that they have eliminated the water, which causes the street surface to crack and remain a successful and economically done.

The greatest problem the Jansville officials are faced with is the expansion and contracting of the material. Cement engineers of national fame, at the Chicago conference, declared that they have eliminated the water, which causes the street surface to crack and remain a successful and economically done.

The plan of the delegates at the conference was to meet in those whose names were on the list of approved permanent construction of concrete roads. At the meeting the Jansville officials were present.

Mr. MacDonald, Iowa state highway commissioner, spoke on the development of the new roads and R. J. Witz of the bureau of standards, described the new road and spoke on the contraction and expansion problem. Representatives from nearly every state in the union were present at Friday's banquet and a discussion brought forth many arguments for cement roads.

Over six thousand tons of ice have been stored in the two lower ice houses during the past week. Ninety-one men have been employed to harvest this vast crop which fills the three quarters of the space in the two houses.

Four teams of horses have been in use constantly and the work has progressed rapidly. The ice cut is of a uniform thickness of about ten inches. This is not as thick as the ice of years past, but because of its extraordinary clearness near the surface, the yield is considered a good one. The ice has been cut just opposite the smaller of the two houses and stopped temporarily until next Tuesday when the filling of the upper house will start. After that house is filled the balance of the lower house will be filled from the north of the lower houses. With three houses filled in the city, the people of Jansville need have little fear of an ice famine next summer.

EARTHQUAKE TESTS PANAMA CANAL.

The recent earthquakes at Panama have demonstrated conclusively the stability of Gatun Dam—that great structure that holds in check the waters of the Chagres River and forms the largest artificial lake in the world.

Gatun Dam is nothing whatever like a mill dam. It is not a high, straight wall of masonry, but rather an artificial hill with a gentle slope that is hardly recognized as a dam at all by the tourist.

In fact the growth of jungle already is covering it over and the Gatun dam is said to be a member of Congress on the isthmus. "Thirty years from now people will wonder where we put all the money we spent down here for by that time nearly the whole canal will have the aspect of a natural, and not an artificial waterway."

The story of the great Gatun Dam and the controversy that waged about it, now definitely settled by an earthquake, is told in the most remarkable book of the year—"The Panama Canal" by Frederic J. Haskin.

WATER WORKS CASE RESTS WITH COURT

Citizens Await Action by State Supreme Court on Upholding Judge Grimm's Decision.

Jansville citizens are anxiously awaiting the case of the city against the Jansville Water company, the hearing of which comes before the supreme court February twenty-fourth, for a final decision. When action was brought by the city to force the water company to vacate and allow the city to purchase the plant, the water company staid this action by a temporary injunction, and the case was brought before the circuit court, where Judge Grimm upheld the city officials.

The attorneys for the water company appealed the case and the trouble will be threshed out in the state supreme court on the date named. If this court affirms the decision of Judge Grimm the case will go back to the railroad commission, which makes the final certificate of valuation. In case of an adverse ruling, the court holding with the water company, the city council will promptly refer the question to the people at the special election in April, as that case done on ten days ago.

In either case, the city officials state, there will be no further delays as the case has been removed, and the city will have the water company in its hands. The method of procedure should it become necessary to vacate the question to the voters, the court may do so at a special election, but as the spring election is so close, being April seventh, the voters would probably again voice their opinion on purchasing the company. If the court upholds the water company the question passed by popular vote, the purchasing of the plant would be promptly certified to the railroad commission to give an early hearing, probably within thirty days.

The city officials are confident that the position of the city will be sustained by the supreme court, as it were in the circuit court, and the belief that if another election is necessary the question will pass by a larger majority than before, based on this assumption upon the view that the water works company is so profitable.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)

Along about the middle of the summer of eighteen and ninety we had something like three weeks of extreme hot weather and the Forepaugh show was drawing big crowds both afternoon and evening. After about two weeks of hot weather and big business we ran into Buffalo, N. Y., early Sunday morning where we were billed to show Monday and Tuesday. Sunday was my settling day and the first of the ticket wagon was run into the center of the menagerie so that I might finish the work on Sunday and not be molested by the hundreds of spectators that always visited the show grounds that day.

As we had had a big business during the week I was at the ticket wagon early in the morning to try and strike a balance for the week's business. And after working something like an hour, the balance I got showed that I was about $500 short on the week. This naturally excited me a little so I lit a cigar and rested for a while and wondered whether somebody had reached over my shoulder and taken a bundle of money or whether I had paid out that amount to some one and forgotten to enter it on the book.

In a few minutes I started again from the beginning and put down everything that I could think of and when I came to try and balance the next time I found that I was about $1,400 short in place of $500. I took the book and threw it to the end of the wagon saying that $1,400 was not too much for a man that was fool enough to travel with a circus, ought to lose his life and his money too.

Up to this time I did not suppose that there was anyone in hearing distance, but Mr. Bailey had quietly walked in and sat down to the side of the wagon, and at this moment stepped around to the end of the wagon and said to me: "Dave, I have thought as much myself many a time. Now you are not $500 short nor $1,400. Your money is all there, but the big business and the hot weather have been too much for you."

He said, "Now I think most of the people have gone to Niagara Falls to spend the day and you just look up everything and take the train and go to Niagara Falls and spend the day and rest up, and in the morning you will find out that your money on your vouchers will be the ones that you have overlooked for you have not paid out anything that you did not get a voucher nor have you allowed anyone to get near enough to your safe to take any of the money. It's all there and when you get rested up it will be easy for you to find it."

I took his advice, spent the day at Niagara Falls and up into the evening and about 2 o'clock the next morning I opened the ticket wagon and in less than twenty minutes I struck a balance that was satisfactory and of all the men that I ever knew James A. Bailey was the most considerate of everyone in his employ.

In the spring of '84 a young man who had only been in the newspaper business for a short time applied to the office of Adam Forepaugh in Philadelphia to go out with the show and do newspaper work. His name was Whiting Allen, his home was in a small town in Ohio and his experience in the newspaper work up to that time had been very limited. He was given a position back with the show—that of looking after the newspapers in the different towns where we showed.

Allen had something of an idea of himself and thought that next to Mr. Forepaugh he was the one man of importance around the show. He would take possession of anything around the show that looked to him as though it might better his work or in any way help him along, never considering the inconvenience that it might be to anyone else.

The end of the wagon where all the ticket selling was done was very small and there was only room for a small flat safe, and a stool for me to sit on. The safe had only been in a few days when Allen commenced to monopolize my end of the wagon, hanging his rain coat or extra clothing of any kind in what was known as the end of the wagon, where he considered them safe. He would hang three or four times about it, saying there was no room there and that he would have to find a wardrobe somewhere else, and I didn't even have room for my own extra or extra clothing. Allen paid no attention to this and one day received a double-breasted Prince Albert suit of clothes or black worsted and immediately brought them into my end of the wagon and hung them up. We were showing on the edge of a small lot which necessitated standing my wagon outside of the lot on the public highway.

When I got into the wagon and found Allen's suit hanging there I took it down and took it into the road and laid it lengthwise across the driveway and after a few teams had driven over them one of the boys with the show rescued the suit and took it to Mr. Allen. After visiting with the ticket wagon and saying many unkind things to me he said, "I will have something to say in the newspaper tonight about the fresh young man who steals tickets to the show." I told him that up to this time I had received little notice in the business and if he could only say something about me it would certainly suit me, no matter whether it was complimentary or not.

But Allen found a new place for his wardrobe and after a time we became friends and from his start in the newspaper work in the spring of '84 he never quit his business up to the time of his death about two years ago. His services were always in demand at a good salary and any of the large shows. He was a man that never drank and always attended to his work.

In the years that I was with the Forepaugh show there were perhaps six or seven of what were known as "old timers" in the business, who in years gone by had made fortunes and been famous all over the country. But these men for many years had been down and out, yet they would occasionally come on and stay three or four days or a week and beg to Adam Forepaugh to put a show together and start them on the road again. All these men knew that Mr. Forepaugh built all his cars, cages, baggage wagons, in fact everything in his winter quarters, that went to make up a high class show, and that there were more or less good second hand wagons of all kinds and a few cars and harnesses in the winter quarters that never were taken out in the summer. And while these men had been down and out for as many as twenty years in so far as the outside world was concerned and failure was written all over them, there was one thing about them, and that was they never had lost their courage. They still thought that if they had another start on the road that people would recollect the name and know that there was a good show coming and they would not be a headliner. While Mr. Forepaugh would listen to them and urge them to stay longer as his guests, yet they never talked him into the idea of putting out a show, and when they came to go away, Adam Forepaugh would always bring them to the ticket wagon and tell me to give them $300 or $500 and I never knew him to give one of these men less than $300, and while they needed the money badly, it did not look much to them, for their ambition was to get a show on the road. To the average man who is broke and down and out $300 or $500 would look like a lot of money, yet it did not seem to mean much to these men.

One of them in particular, whose name I will not mention, was 71 years old at the time and yet he insisted to Mr. Forepaugh that his name was a power from California to Maine and that all he needed was a nice little bright show that he could take on the road and that he was just as capable then to manage such a show as he was in his prime days; that he was certain he could go out and make a fortune in one season. But Adam Forepaugh gave him a pass back to his home and $500 in money. But this did him but little good for he had hoped in the near future to have a show on the road of his own. While each of these men in their turn had received a knockout blow they were ready and anxious to go back and try again.

Hundreds of people who attend the moving picture shows all over the country have but little idea of how these pictures are taken or the dangers that some people have to go through to have real pictures of the wild animals which are many times seen in the better class houses. The following will give you an idea of one actor's narrow escape:

"Southern Pathe players are having an exciting time of it at the St. Augustine studio, according to reports. Walter Seymour the leading man, has had several narrow escapes, and is convinced that animal features, from the actor's standpoint, are eminently 'no good.'"

One of these experiences happened while taking a scene in the arena in which he was being chased by a tiger. Although the scene was well timed, Seymour lost his footing and fell, with the tiger on his back. Although the trainers drove off the brute just in time, the leading man's face was badly cut in falling against the bars, and the tiger's claws cut him in the side."

Great Idea.

THE FLEA

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Sluagh."

A FLEA is an insect kangaroo about as large as a pin head, to the eye, and a little larger than a well drilling outfit to the sense of feeling. The flea has a hard shell and a set of extremely talented legs. Because of these legs the flea can do what no other animal or insect has ever been able to accomplish. He can be in two places at once—under the thumb of an angry man and four feet away, getting ready to jump again.

This is an astonishing statement, but can be proven by several million people who have hunted the flea with murderous intent at one time or another. It is perfectly easy to place a large horney thumb on a small flea while he is sitting in an attitude of quiet meditation. Every one does it. When the owner of the thumb has put it over the flea he will readily bet all he has that the flea is there. But a careful examination will usually disclose him a yard or more away admiring the scenery. Those patient diplomats, who have been hanging around the department of state since March and invariably asking for the secretary on the wrong day, call the flea the William Jennings Bryan family.

The flea is very small, but he can jump farther than the hippopotamus. He can jump several hundred times his own length. If man were as good a jumper as the flea, he would treat the elevators in the Woolworth building with quiet scorn and would leap lightly to the cornice from Broadway. However, after the flea has passed several hours executing prodigious jumps he is usually within ten inches of the spot where he began. This would fill us with great contempt for the flea's intelligence if we did not at this minute think of the hundreds of automobile owners who travel all day at the rate of 50 miles an hour in order to land where they started.

The flea inhabits warm, sandy countries, and is very fond of human society. Nothing pleases a flea so much as to jump down the collar of a perfect stranger and roam around him for days at a time, occasionally sinking a shaft into him in the hope of striking oil. Fleas will not touch some people, but love others dearly and travel for miles to congregate upon them. When traveling in Italy always choose a companion who is madly beloved by the flea. This will enable you and many others in the same neighborhood to travel in comparative comfort.

TAKE SODA IF FOOD SOURS IN ACID STOMACH

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash, or nausea.

He tells us to get a package of 10 grain Sedagen tablets from any pharmacy and swallow one tablet anytime followed by a tumbler of water which instantly neutralizes, these acids, stops food fermentation, absorbs the gases and sweetens the entire digestive system.

This suggestion should prove valuable to stomach sufferers here, who can trace their indigestion to acidity. A local druggist is the authority that these tablets are entirely harmless, being composed of Soda, Magnesia and Calcium Carbonate U. S. P.

The Land Divided— the World United

YOUR Panama Canal is an accomplished fact. The continent is cut in two. The oceans are made one. In man's greatest rearrangement of his earth the dream of centuries comes true. For 400 years, from Columbus to de Lesseps, men sought in vain for a direct water route from Europe to the Orient.

Eighteen times they planned a canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but each time they fell back before resistant Nature.

Each boastful project met defeat at the threshold of a land of bristling mountain ranges; of mad torrential rivers; of slimy, venomous jungles breeding poisonous fevers, mortal terror and swift death. Then Nature's dare was accepted by the Americans.

The reconnaissance alone took months. The filthy tropical towns had to be scrubbed and disinfected. Yellow fever had to be wiped out and its carrier—the mosquito—all but annihilated.

While folks at home were crying for the "dirt to fly," your countrymen on the Isthmus were making railroads, planning comfortable and sanitary homes for thousands of workmen and their families, building their schools, starting their churches.

Then came the greatest conflict with Nature the world has ever seen. Culebra Mountain was broken to pieces and slowly carted off the map.

The violent Chagres River was changed from a menace to the essential feature of your Panama Canal. The giant Gatun Dam was built to hold the largest made-to-order lake on earth. Huge concrete locks to serve as stepping stones for ocean liners were planted in this strip of tropic land. The obstacles have been overcome. The job is done.

Not since the dawn of history has there been so vast an undertaking put through with such indomitable purpose, such common sense and such pure patriotism.

From Coast to Coast, wherever red blood runs in men's veins, the true account of this colossal work will be read.

MILITARY OFFICIALS URGE ESTABLISHING SUPPLY PROTECTION

Net Gain of Exports to United States
During Year's Time is One Million.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Feb. 14.—In case of war the city of Paris would probably find itself without bread within four days. This alarm has been sounded by a thorough study of the possibilities and the announcement has resulted in a popular demand for measures to assure an ample food supply in case of a conflict. The minister of war and the under secretary of state have decided to take up the whole question with the municipal council for further study with an endeavor to solve the problem.

Military authorities point out that during the first two weeks of mobilization in case of war all railroad trains and lines would be reserved exclusively for military trains and no supplies for the civil population could be transported. It has been proposed among other things to buy 10,000 tons of flour to be kept in a public warehouse and to be used as necessary. It is suggested that the state contribute immediately $90,000 as a first payment toward this and the municipality $40,000. While the problem of a sufficient supply of flour and wheat is considered most important the authorities are also planning to conserve stocks of other necessary things, including wood, coal and oil.

"It," says Commander Driant, a well known retired army official, "an order of mobilization were given on Thursday, Paris would have neither bread, milk nor meat at the beginning of next week. Another important question is that of the water supply. I would ask what Parisians would drink were Paris invested and cut off from its water supply. This is a phase of the problem that the commission which has been studying the subject might consider thoroughly. We have arrived at a time when all the problems of national defense must be considered without delay."

Opinion on Music.
There is no nation naturally musical according to Henri Bidou, critic and historian. If a nation is musical, he says, it is because it has passed through a contribution that it has been driven to express its sorrow and anxiety in its arts and compositions. Bach, he declares, is the culminating expression of the sufferings induced in Germany by the thirty years' war, fifty years before Bach's time.

People sing "like cowards," he continues to keep up their spirit in bad moments, and he finds that the real countries of music are nearly all frontier provinces, exposed to eternal vicissitudes.

England he finds to be exempt to a large extent from the occasions in which poets "learn in suffering what they celebrate in song" because it is protected from invasion by the girdle of the seas. Music, then, he argues, is not an art of peace; it originates in strife and anxiety—not in tranquility.

ity and anxiety. The over prosperous countries, he discovers, not only have no history; they have no music.

Exports Gaining.
Consul General Mason has brought together the figures of French export to the United States during 1913. They were $140,016,549, or $3,733,384 larger than those of 1912, thus passing the total of any previous year. The net gain in three years has been $21,999,000.

The reports from the Paris district show that the exports of automobile accessories, which amounted to $1,209,412 in 1912, was cut in half during 1913. The exports of paintings, precious stones and hides show considerable advances, and the increases in textiles was about 60 per cent. Paris exports have risen in eleven years from $41,000,000 to $80,000,000.

SNUB MILITANTS AT SUFFRAGE MEETING

Delegates of National Society Give Demonstration in Favor of Votes at London.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Feb. 14.—A tremendous demonstration in favor of votes for women will take place tonight at the Albert Hall, under the auspices of the National Union of Women Suffrage Societies. Tickets for nearly every one of the 10,000 seats were disposed of some days ago, and the organizers of the meeting are confident that it will be one of the most enthusiastic in the history of the movement in Great Britain.

Delegates from all the constitutional suffrage societies—of both men and women—in the country will be present. The militants alone—the Women's Social and Political Union and the Women's Freedom League—were not invited, and particularly care was exercised that tickets did not fall into the hands of members of these organizations for fear of unpleasant interruptions.

Mrs. Millicent G. Fawcett, president of the National Union, will occupy the chair, and among the speakers will be Lord Lytton, Arthur Henderson, M. P., the Bishop of Kensington, and Miss Irene Vanbrugh, one of England's leading actresses. Resolutions will be submitted demanding that a government measure for the enfranchisement of women be used to open a fund to be known as the Women's Suffrage Mandate Fund, which will be used for campaign purposes throughout the country. The National Union now has a membership of 50,000 and is by far the largest and most influential women's organization in Great Britain.

PANAMA CANAL WILL OPEN NEW SECTIONS FOR FOREIGN PEOPLE

Report of English Board of Trade
Shows Labor Trouble During Past Years Costs Immense Sum.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Feb. 14.—That the government at Washington is making preparations for increased emigration from Europe to the Pacific of the Panama Canal, is indicated by a request to American consuls in Europe to furnish the Department of Labor with reports on the plans being made by transportation agencies to handle the increased traffic. The consuls have also been called upon to supplement the work of special emigration commissioners who have visited Europe lately, with reports of the quantity and quality of the expected immigration.

Railroads Active.

European representatives of American government are indicating the beginning of a movement by Washington to encourage the high type of emigration which England and Germany are making every effort to divert to their own colonies. These governments offer every inducement to steamships and railroads to handle this traffic while the agents of American government adopt a negative policy, which, while effectively shutting out many undesirable immigrants, also discourages the solid type of immigrant from whom there is still much room in the United States.

Encourage Emigration.
Alexander Jackson, who has represented a large American railroad system for many years in Europe has suggested to the local American consulate business possibilities that such booklets setting forth the agricultural and business possibilities of the various states for free distribution in Europe. He believes that such booklets backed by the government imprimatur would lead to a great increase in the numbers of immigrants who are looking for farms, or business openings rather than for ordinary jobs.

Laborer's Clubs.
Club life for the working man is to be developed on a large scale in London. A central labor palace is to be erected at a cost of over $250,000, which in addition to providing meeting halls for the trades unions is to include a moving picture theatre for the display of labor scenes. A large organ and orchestra will play music written around the pictures. Arrangements have been made with unions in France, Belgium and Germany for the exchange of films. A pool of $350,000 having been formed for this purpose. There are also to be dining rooms, where orchestras will play during meals, a smoking lounge and other comforts of a first rate club. One of the chief features will be stores where provisions of all kinds will be sold to members, and at times of strikes giving away instead of strike pay.

The promoters believe that the undertaking will pay its own way. The scheme has the official support of the London Trades Council, which represents 120 unions, with a membership of 200,000. It is expected that many other unions, especially the smaller ones, now outside the jurisdiction of the council, will join.

Strikers Are Costly.
According to a report issued by the Board of Trade, supplemented by data supplied by trades unions, organized workers have lost nearly $90,000,000 in wages from stoppages due to trade disputes during the last ten years. To this has to be added a very large amount distributed in strike pay. Against this the net gain in wages resulting from dispute is reorted as $13,000,000. In the same period the working classes as a whole have secured the employers' 25 per cent. by the workers and the other 25 per cent. were compromised.

Industrial Peace.
Lecturing before the War and Peace Society of the Manchester university, Vice-Chancellor Weiss declared that the necessities of business and trade would bring about a world's federation quicker than any ethical movement in favor of peace. He asserted that co-operation was the order of the age and that since present industrialism was responsible for oppression and tyranny the growth of co-operative movements would lead to mutual protection. Co-operation he said, was advancing over competition and all reasoning people ought to assist the movement. He believed that international agreements would soon be necessary to control hours of labor, labor of women and children and work injurious to health.

RUSSIAN WOMEN JAILED FOR SINGING POLISH HYMN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Petersburg, Feb. 14.—For singing the Polish national anthem two young women of Vilna (Russian Poland), Haroness von Rosenberg, aged 21, and Mile. Kobylitsky, aged 22, today began serving sentences of one month and 20 days imprisonment, respectively, in fortress. It was alleged at their trial that papers of a "dangerous character" had been found in their possession, but nothing was proved against them of a "revolutionary" nature except they had led in the public singing of the Polish hymn in the porch of a Vilna church.

CLAIMS SEGREGATION IS SUCCESSFUL IN ASYLUM, AT COLUMBUS, OHIO

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 14.—"The happiest little community in Ohio" is the term applied to the Ohio Institute for the Feeble Minded, where 1900 mental defectives are working and playing. While reformers and many scientists are demanding sterilization of mental defectives, Dr. E. J. Emerick, superintendent of the Ohio Institute, has apparently solved the problem for this state. "Segregation is the proper way to eliminate feeble-mindedness," said Dr. Emerick. "This isn't a hospital. It's a home, a workshop, a playground. The people can never hope for recovery. They are not to blame, so why sterilization. They are the state's wards, not burdens in our institute here. Therefore, the institution is their protector, as it shields them from the scoffs and jeers of the thoughtless."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THINGS NOT REPORTED IN THE NEWS COLUMNS

Bob-ride parties are in full swing if the weather is a bit chill. Who minds the weather when the sleighing is good, a number of congenial couples get together and decide to pay a visit to a mutual friend of theirs who resides about five miles out. Just a nice ride.

As the people in the country are not aware of the trip until notified with ear-splitting sounds on the city folks arriving the wives of the party all bring refreshments.

One of the women famous among her friends for the results she can produce with Jello and whipped cream is, by request, donating a huge crock for but nevertheless has, is a very busy husband, whose pet idiosyncrasy is his aversion to ever carrying anything. This is so deep rooted in this particular man that his wife is reluctant to ask him to play the part of bundle-carrier.

When the party of merry-makers arrived at their destination Mr. Fuss's wife plucked up courage enough to ask him to take the crock of Jello. "For just a minute," He readily assented and surprised her by starting for the kitchen door exclaiming "I'll be well, for the way I'll go in." Prophetic words! He entered the open door forgetting to clean the snow from the heels of his shoes. It was only a little snow but when he trod on it on the smooth kitchen floor things began to happen. Quicker than it takes to tell it he slipped, tried to save himself, missed, threw up his hands and spilled the contents of the crock over his head.

To repeat what he said would be to have him removed from the several positions he holds in the church; if not from the church. We won't tell—only, why would like to know what he said to his wife?

Who is the man in our town who while he does not openly advertise his ability as an animal trainer likes to pat himself on the back for his powers along this line? He never yet saw the dog that would not respond to his advances, the trouble with the rest of his male friends was simply that they did not understand the basics.

Men change their minds as well as women, sometimes.

Last week this man with the fondness for dogs abnormally big in his make-up started for a walk with a friend of his "around the horn." As they neared the Spring Brook bridge they met a party of hunters with two dogs. "One dog was just a plain everyday dog so he is dismissed from the case. Not so the other. He was shaggy, set, and tenacious looking. "Ugly looking brute" said Mr. Dog-Fancier's companion. "Nothing of the sort," replied Mr. D. F. "Watch how easy it is for anyone who understands dogs to make friends with them."

As he spoke he fearlessly advanced towards the dog who showed a vicious set of teeth and let out a growl that would have put the average person on their guard. Not so our friend; he understood dogs and had yet to meet the one he could not make friends with. He don't say that now! Not The dog kept as a souvenir of their meeting the most of the man's glove and a piece of the fore-finger of the hand that had reached out to greet him in so friendly a way.

Four stitches, and many yards of gauze was needed to put his hand in presentable shape, and he has called regularly on the doctor for treatment since.

POINTS TO BUNGLES OF TAX COMMISSION

Communication to Gazette Calls Attention to Several Instances in Rock County.

Mr. Editor.
In a recent article published in your paper you gave credit and praise to the railroad and industrial commissions of Wisconsin, but as to the tax commission you stated there is nothing to say, at least its results are not so apparent.

Now permit me to join you in commending the railroad and industrial commissions and say a few words in regard to the tax commission.

The tax commission, like other public servants, is subject to free and honest criticism. There is no question in my mind but that the tax commission is the weakest and most inefficient commission of importance in the state. The value of railroads, public utilities and some other property is obtained through experts from the railroad commission and the values fixed by them have been just and equitable. As regards the value of real estate and other properties that shall name whose values were fixed by the tax commission, the result of their valuations shows the hand of a novice instead of that of an expert.

Permit me to give you some examples. The contest over the equalization of the city of Beloit in 1912 was an eye-opener to the people of Rock County. It certainly was the rankest piece of work that we have witnessed for some time.

The assessor of incomes, F. A. Taylor, claimed that in fixing the value of real estate in Beloit he was following the instructions of the commission, by using the values that they had given him. F. P. Starr, who was employed in the city of Beloit, proved that the values given by the commission were not accurate and hence could not be relied on for the purpose of county equalization. He also proved that the value placed on merchants' stock and manufacturers' stocks, public utilities, etc., was the work of amateurs. The city of Beloit took their medicine, but not without a vigorous protest. Now the tax commission knew full well that the city of Beloit would go into court in 1914 if the blunder of 1912 was not corrected, so they applied the reverse lever and backed up and met the request of the city of Beloit as follows: notwithstanding the city of Beloit has increased in value during the last year, real estate lowered $670,000, merchants' stock $380,000, water and light $205,700, manufacturers' stock $778,800. Bear in mind that Mr. Taylor read a letter from the tax commission, commending his work.

Now the tax commission is up against it again. The towns of Newark and Beloit, having appealed from the county equalization. The hearing will be held at the court house Monday, Feb. 16. The true value fixed by the tax commission places the average value of an acre of land in the towns named as follows: Newark, $105; Harmony, $118; Union, $116; and Beloit, $145. Anyone not immune to the knowledge of values and knowing that there is a large amount of inferior land in each of those towns, knows that the value placed by the commission is exorbitant. If you will compare the report of the assessor of incomes for the last two years you will note that the form furnished by the tax commission omits the average true and assessed value per acre of land. I wonder why?

Now as to the parties who check up the sales of real estate. Why such inaccurate valuations? For the simple reason that the men employed by the commission to do this work are not qualified. They are long on theory and short on practice. And again the present tax commission lacks the experience and ability of the old commission. They have a bountiful supply of theory, which can not be used to any great extent in a work of so vital importance as the valuation of the various classes of property which requires not only skill and experience, but a keen sense of justice.

The hearing next Monday will no doubt bring to light some facts in regard to the sales of property in the towns contesting that the tax commission will not be proud of. In conclusion, permit me to say that a tax commission that cost $174,000 in 1912-1913, should show better results for the money expended.

Defeat of Stoughton and Whitewater Places Edgerton in Line for State Championship.

Edgerton, Feb. 14.—The triangular debate between Stoughton, Whitewater and Edgerton on the question of "Resolved, That the policy of fixing a minimum wage by state board is desirable," was won by the Edgerton team by a two to one decision in each place between Stoughton and Edgerton at Stoughton and Whitewater and Edgerton at Edgerton, Stoughton winning at Whitewater. The affirmative team representing Edgerton were Glen Gardner, Kenneth Earle and Harold Pratt. The negative team Lowell Whitteit, Eugene Flarity and Francis Curran. The different phases of the question that were brought out showed that a considerable amount of study had been exerted. SHOWING THE SEASON'S NEWEST IMPORTED PATTERNS AND STYLES

The success of this firm to create and model exclusive and individual garments for women has been phenomenal, for the reason that the most exacting patron has received the same high-class workmanship, perfect fit, advance styles and absolute satisfaction that they had previously received in Chicago at prices in excess of those charged here.

To Those Ordering Before March First We Will Grant a 10% Discount

OUR SERVICE:

We have demonstrated to many in Janesville and vicinity that there is no need to go out of town for really exclusive, stylishly man-tailored and fancy tailored garments.

Our Mr. Strassberg is an artist in cutting and designing. He is equal to any designer in Chicago and is superior to the majority. He has been requested by establishments in Chicago to make model designs for their own designers and cutters to follow.

Why then should Janesville ladies patronize outside tailoring establishments when their own city contains an acknowledged artist. Perfect satisfaction is absolutely guaranteed by us and we are here where you can obtain that satisfaction. We have never hesitated to say that if a garment is not right we will make you another from a new piece of cloth.

Our prices have caused comment. Some say we charge too much and others say we can not give satisfaction at such low prices. Let us say, we can give you exactly what you want. Our prices range according to material used and style chosen. We have cloths that cost up to $11.50 per yard. Compare our garments with others of equal class and our prices will be considerably lower.

COST OF GOVERNMENT HIGH IN WISCONSIN

MILWAUKEE CORRESPONDENT
TACKLES HIGH TAX PROBLEM
FROM NEW ANGLE.

TIME TO TAKE NOTICE

Submits Table of Costs of State Government Before and After 1900.

(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Feb. 14.—The question of taxation and the expense of government is easily made confusing to the ordinary taxpayer by the expert who deals in figures and percentages. What has been said in the past few months I have not flattered myself that it was accomplishing very much. As has been before remarked frequently, this is a season when facts run off most people like water off a duck's back. But the time must come when they will be impressive.

Cost a Decade Ago.
In his first message in 1901 Governor La Follette used a table of state expenditures for a decade that preceded Governor Spooner's last term, from which I take the following:

Cost of State Government—	1890-1899.
1890	$2,574,227.77
1891	2,741,735.02
1892	2,593,733.95
1893	3,184,823.31
	$13,415,213.46

1894	1895	1896	1897	1898
$3,014,645.12	3,200,337.09	3,210,623.82	3,638,264.93	3,708,582.50
				16,592,293.46

Total for ten years, $30,307,506.92
The figures are chiefly important here because Governor La Follette said of them:

"The above table of aggregate receipts and disbursements for a period of years I believe you will find of value. It shows a steady and rapid increase in the cost of state government. While there is abundant evidence of expanding usefulness and of unquestioned public benefits derived from most of the new expenditures incurred by the state, an advance of almost 50 per cent in the cost of state government within a period of ten years is entitled to high rank among the facts worthy of grave consideration in all departments of government."

Cost of State Government—	1900-1914.
1900	$4,000,819.00
1901	4,695,175.73
1902	5,634,655.70
1903	5,308,167.64
1904	6,555,621.80
	$26,194,439.87

1905	1906	1907	1908	1909
6,424,007.05	6,938,340.01	10,664,538.52	16,589,524.74	16,272,124.00
				59,958,534.33

Total ten years, $85,152,974.26
Average cost per annum, 1890-1899, $3,030,750.69
Average cost per annum, 1894-1899, 3,378,458.69
Average cost per annum, 1900-1909, 5,238,837.77
Average cost per annum, 1910-1914, 11,991,700.86
To make the figures more emphatic they are divided into five year periods. The figures for 1913 are taken from a newspaper statement by the state treasurer, Johnson. The figures for 1914 are from Prof. Adams and I think are about $2,000,000 under what the state will probably spend this year.

No one who will study these tables will hesitate to admit that they are very "progressive," especially since 1909. My friend the assessor of incomes was "mighty right" when he promised me I will pay more taxes next year and that everybody else will. And the increase will have no more reference to the taxpayer's "ability to pay," if his net income, than heretofore. If anybody wants exercise in Prof. Adams' crafty and beforging amusement of figuring percentages the above figures will furnish him material.

Have Strange Hold.
What will you do about it? Under existing election laws it would be very difficult for even a majority of the voters to unite for action and make it effective. It seems altogether impossible that they can unite if they are so disposed. The election laws, together with the patronage, give the present state government a strangle hold that can be broken at all only by a practically spontaneous and unanimous uprising of the people, which would result in casting party and factional politics to the dogs.

It seems useless to anticipate any such possibility, because the electors who have been voting, and a large part of those who have not voted recently, are men who have been educated to the idea that the government, state or municipal, can and ought to do everything. No man can single handed make headway against the present state administration. La Follette is practically out of it and is today a "back number" in Wisconsin. His friends are just beginning to realize the fact.

How Things Stand.
If the reader doubts let him reckon a little. The boy who cast his first vote in 1900 for La Follette is now 35. The man who was 35 in 1900 is 49 this year. Mr. La Follette will be 59 next June. A majority of the voters who will control elections this year were not voters in 1905. It may be safely reckoned that three-fifths of all the votes cast in 1912 in Wisconsin were those of "progressives" of some sort. They were McGovern "progressives," which includes the Bull Moose, or La Follette "progressives," or Wilson "progressives," or Victor Berger "progressives." All these agree in some measure and usually believe in municipal, state and government ownership, if they realize what they are voting for, and nothing else is now being taught in Wisconsin. That is Dr. McCarthy's "Wisconsin Idea" and Mr. Roosevelt in an introduction to Dr. McCarthy's book says: "All through the union we need to learn the Wisconsin lesson of scientific popular self-help, and of patient care in radical legislation."

Do not deceive yourself, Mr. Taxpayer, as to the importance of the youth and vigor behind our radical leaders, nor be misled by the men of straw that the radicals label "Tory" them about for special restraint and political effect. The figures above given show the impotency of such imaginary people. If they have some times existed you couldn't get one of them to shake hands with you in public now, they are so few and so intimidated by the persistent hammering of fifteen years.

Nothing will ever be accomplished to change existing politics in Wisconsin until the taxpayers realize that they have a "belly full" of radical statesmanship, and they have got to fight, fight hard, and in the open, to get the radicals from being stripped of all their savings as well as their earnings. Perhaps, in time, some younger men will realize that they have interests in common with their fathers in the protection of private property, unless they prefer to become the serfs of a repressive social state, which is what we are now moving toward. That means that we are progressing toward the extinction of the great middle class of American property, unless the millionaires nor serfs nor beggars. Unrighteous government has always accomplished its most dangerous assaults upon liberty by the perversion of the taxing power for the benefit of first demagogues, then of despots.

Telephone Foresight.
(Advertisement.)

The Wisconsin Telephone company, which increased its wire mileage by 42,000 miles last year and added 5,171 miles of new toll mileage, is planning for still larger improvements during the present year. Some idea of the care with which this company does its engineering may be got from the estimates of this year's growth. It expects to install 26,683 new telephone stations to discontinue 14,979 phones. When it is realized that such plans involve work and telephone facilities sufficient to serve a city of over 250,000 people the magnitude of it is realized. For to do this work in the large territory of the entire state requires more labor of all kinds than to serve one compact community. The year is expected to see 23,989 new poles set, upon which 28,016 cross arms will be placed, and the added facilities will demand forty-four new sections of central office switchboard. One new central office building and additions to ten others will be required to keep abreast of the growing telephone necessities of the state. All this means the largest expenditure in the company's history, about two and a half millions. Such facts are the visible signs of telephone improvement, but people generally do not realize that such improvement is predicated upon the most careful and scientific study of the state, its local conditions and the prospects of growth and development in population and business. The telephone officials must know as certain as is possible the human mind and foresight where there is a growing demand for telephone service. There is nothing haphazard about telephone improvements. They are planned twenty years in advance and mean the ability to see how closely the estimates prove up. The five town can be sure that the Wisconsin Telephone company is one of its most dependable boosters. For it does its boosting in this practical manner.

Good roads are an example of the "progressive" development of our taxes. In 1912 the state highway fund expended $49,985.40. This year Dane county alone, so the state treasurer estimated, expended $50,000, and the governor in an address to the annual road school at Madison on Monday said that over $4,000,000 will be spent for roads this year. This is more money than it cost to run the entire state government for a year ago, and four-tenths of its cost even as late as 1912. It is, too, one of those taxes that are taken out of the counties and then returned to them. I have heard the local choppers talk much about it, but it is taken out of the county and returned as "state aid," unless the expert who is talking about it is trying to explain that state taxes are not higher. The scheme is to have the state build a road out of local hands and have a new set of state officials direct the expenditure. Probably three-quarters of the money will be wasted. The money will be spent, however. It is a campaign year. The plan shows how the expense of any kind of work in the hands of the politicians. The automobile owners who have been busy in promoting this extravagance have no business to kick on high taxes.

The Erie Is Getting There.
(Advertisement.)

A very good illustration of the work done in its showing for December when it increased both its net and gross business. The Erie is making promises to make a good showing by reducing operating costs in December about $220,000 a showing was made that was over $60,000 better than in December, 1912. In the face of a falling off in business on the Pennsylvania and New York Central lines the Erie's December gross business showed a small net gain on a total of $4,353,600. But the management spent more money than it did a year ago for maintenance, which is part of the systematic effort to bring the physical condition of the property up to a high standard of physical development that it is planning for this spring, which will see the completion of the last few links of a double track on the Chicago end.

FISH SUCCESSFULLY USED AS FERTILIZER

Federal Department of Agriculture
Makes Wide Search for Nitrogenous Products.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Feb. 14.—The ocean depths are the latest regions to be explored by the bureau of soils of the department of agriculture in its constant search for the nation's assets in fertilizer materials.

Just now it is engaged in a hunt for nitrogenous products, which with phosphorous and potassium form the triumvirate of desirable fertilizers, and it is estimated that literally billions of fish might be caught and converted into the richest fertilizing material without appreciably decreasing the supply.

Even the American Indians knew something of the value of fish as fertilizers and are now planning to put one or two in each hill of corn at the time of planting. The first factory for cooking fish by steam for fertilizing purposes was erected near Portsmouth in 1841 from that time until 1884 the industry grew.

Since then, however, it has suffered something of a decline and the bureau of soils hopes to inaugurate a revival of this industry to avert the threatened depletion of the soil.

No region of the world has been overlooked by this bureau in its hunt for the three elements named, for their presence is deemed of more value to the nation at large than all the gold veins of California or the unlimited silver of Nevada.

The deserts of the great southwest have been scoured for potassium salts, the kelp groves of the Pacific coast as far north as Alaska have been experimented with to the same end, great peat beds in Florida are now being examined, and phosphate fields have been discovered in South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Utah and Idaho.

None of these, however, give more promise of development than do the innumerable fish that may be secured by the boatload in the Atlantic every summer.

Acting under the direction of Milton Whitney, chief of the bureau of soils, a "Turrentine" has been completed an investigation of the possibilities of fish fertilizers, the most common fish used for this purpose being the menhaden, variously known as the "pokey," "hard head," "bug fish" and other colloquial names. It is seldom used for food.

Although as many as 900,000,000 menhaden have been caught and converted into fertilizer in one year the catch has become almost insignificant when compared with the number of fish destroyed by their natural enemies, principally the dog fish and the blue fish. One authority estimates the number at three thousand million.

Perhaps the most probable extension of the fish-scrap industry through which the employment of fish other than the menhaden for that purpose will prove to be the utilization of the annual loss from destruction of fish by dogfish and fishing gear in the state of Massachusetts alone amounts to $400,000.

The Canadian government has already sought to combine a war on the dogfish with an increase of production by establishing three plants in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick for the purpose of converting the dogfish into fish-scrap.

Near Pensacola, Fla., a plant has recently been erected for this purpose. With the establishment of other such plants it is thought that millions of mullet which cannot be disposed of at night might be made available for the fruit and truck growers.

Conservatism.

Conservatism is often nothing but mental or moral inertia, and measures one's unwillingness to readjust his living or his thinking, to a new fact or a new idea. Selfishness love has been completely enthroned. In the individual, or in society, until love has been completely enthroned. It is at this point that the religious element enters in as essential to the realization of our social ideal.—Dr. Josiah Strong in "Our World: The New World Life."

RASH ON ARMS

ITCHED AND BURNED

Especially at Night. At Times Got No Sleep At All. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

400 South Hermitage Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"I had a terrible rash with a breaking out on the inside of my arms. It was a small rash or pimples and it itched and burned, especially at night, so that before I knew it, I had made myself sore. I had to wear the finest kind of cotton underwear, no woolen at all, because the least thing irritated it and made it much worse. The rash itched and smarted until at times I got no sleep at all."

"I had this trouble and took treatments for about one year, but they only gave me relief while taking them. Then I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I got relief right away. I made a good strong lather of Cuticura Soap and washed myself every night and morning, drying myself with a good soft towel, and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. In three months I was a well man again." (Signed) H. W. Foley, Nov. 5, 1912.

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

Prevent dry, thin and falling hair, allay itching and irritation, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, frequent shampoo with Cuticura Soap, assisted by occasional dressings with Cuticura Ointment, afford a most effective and economical treatment. A single set is often sufficient. Cuticura Soap (25c) and Cuticura Ointment (50c) are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

BEING SORRY.

A DISTANT relative of ours has a very quick tempered husband. He is perpetually getting upset over one thing or another—and as his wife, whether she is to blame for the annoyance or not.

Then, as soon as the fit of temper is past, he is usually sorry for his harsh words and tries to make it up to her by being especially sweet.

I happened to be there one day when the expressman had chipped a piece of the banister in carrying a trunk upstairs. The man of the house discovered the accident and flew at his wife. Of course she wasn't the least to blame, except as mother is always to blame for anything that goes wrong in the house. But he reproached her as bitterly as if she, herself, had done it, and done it deliberately.

After he had gone out of the room with a final fling about people who didn't deserve nice things if they couldn't keep them decent, she told me, I mustn't mind him. "It's just his way," she said. "It isn't as if he were really ugly, you know. In a little while he'll be sorry and then he'll be extra sweet to me to make up."

And sure enough in a few minutes he came back into the room and offered to do a little household job that she had long wanted done.

Now do you think he wiped out the score against him?

I don't. I know a great many people like him and I think they are mighty hard to live with.

Quick temper and equally facile repentance make up a climate whose violent changes are bad for the health.

Pain and mortification, such as this man inflicted upon his wife by his outburst in the act of doing the nervous force, and repentance, however sincere, cannot undo this harm.

I know a woman who has lived with such a man all her life and she is a nervous wreck. Experiments have proved that if you speak sharply to a sensitive horse you increase his heart beats per minute to an enormous extent; and you cannot undo this harm by patting him and giving him sugar an hour or two afterwards.

Surely a highly strung woman is not less sensitive than a horse. To my mind the only thorough, worth-while repentance for a fit of temper is that which makes the offender try to keep his temper the next time. But when repentance is soon followed by another outburst and that by a new repentance and indignant I do not think that being sweet and obliging for a little while by any means undoes the harm or wipes clean the score.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I read that you have recommended lemon juice and witchhazel for freckles. I have used so many freckle creams that now my face seems to be getting wrinkled. I have big wrinkles on my forehead, but they are not so large. When I am near the looking glass or when I smile I can see them on my cheeks.

I am a young girl and my face makes me look older. I often wonder if it is that I use so many freckle creams that I used that cause those wrinkles. I would be so thankful to you if you would advise me just a little. Some harmless and not very expensive remedy, for I have spent so much money on the other creams. I would like something to prevent those wrinkles and freckles. You do speak so kindly through your letters to those who ask your help. You talk so kind, like a mother.

YOUR FRIEND.

Your letter shows just why I do not recommend the strong ointments so often advocated for freckles and other skin troubles. They usually ruin the skin and seldom correct the trouble permanently. Even lemon, is used constantly, is not good for the skin.

Now, my dear, stop using the freckle creams. Render some mutton tallow. After washing with warm water and a good mild soap, massage your face with this every night before you go to bed. Massage gently, in a circular motion, across the wrinkles. Pinch the flesh gently. Then wipe off the mutton tallow with a clean cloth. In the morning wash with warm water and soap again, then dash cold water over the skin. Get plenty of sleep and eat plenty of good food and you will see an improvement in a month or two.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Please give a recipe for fudges and seafoam. (2) Is it a sin to bring a boy into your room? (3) Fudge: Two cups white sugar, two cups light brown sugar, two cups sweet milk, one-quarter teaspoonful cream of tartar. Mix and boil till it grains nicely, then add butter, size of egg. Take from fire, add vanilla flavor, stir as long as you can before putting in tins. Add nuts if you like, or cocoanut.

Seafoam: Two cups light brown sugar, three-quarters cup water, white of one egg beaten stiff. Boil sugar and water until it threads, then pour it into beaten white of egg same as for frosting; beat till ready to drop on buttered plates. Add nuts or cocoanut if liked.

(2) It is very, very wrong in a great many ways that I cannot explain in a newspaper. Keep your bed chamber holy, my dear.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am to have a birthday party in March. (1) I am going to wear light blue while all the other girls wear white. Many of the girls say it would be nicer for me to be clad in blue and they in pink. What do you think of that?

(2) What color and how should we decorate my home? (3) What would be nice to serve? (4) The party will be from 5:00 in the afternoon until 9:00 o'clock. Do you think that would be the right time and enough for it?

(5) I never had pink cheeks, but my lips are as red as can be. I have plenty of exercise and walk a great deal mornings and evenings, which does not seem to help me improve.

PAUL'S GIRL.

(1) I think the blue for you and white for all the other girls will be very pretty. (2) Wear white flowers and have the room decorated with white and pink flowers, with big bows and long streamers of blue tulle to match your dress. (4) If you serve from a table, have plates of different kinds of dainty sandwiches, some meat, some cheese, some sweet. Have one or two kinds of salad, and dishes of candied fruits, bon bons, small cakes, salted nuts. There must also be a huge bowl of fruit punch. Most of the girls and boys can help themselves to the refreshments, but your mother and a friend will be there to see that nobody is missed, I presume. (4) The hours for your party are just right, my dear. (5) I should judge that you are quite healthy. Often young girls do not have much color in their cheeks, but get more as they grow older.

The Kitchen Cabinet

HERE are some feasts for all the year. But flavor each with rare good cheer, and serve no meal without content. Then shall your year be gladly spent.

MORE GOOD EATINGS.

Here is a good recipe for a fine date cake: Cream one cup of butter, add one and a half cups of sugar, two eggs, one cupful of sour milk, one cupful of dates chopped fine, two and a fourth cups of flour, one cup of chopped nuts, one teaspoonful of vanilla and a pinch of salt. Bake in a long tin and cover with frosting.

Bean Bread.—Soak a quart of navy beans in cold water over night, then parboil with a pinch of soda until the skins roll up. Wash well, cook until soft, season with salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of peanut butter. Mix into them a cup of graham flour and mold into two loaves. Bake slowly until solid. Eat either hot or cold.

Eggless Prune Cake.—Take two tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of brown sugar, one cup of sour milk, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoon of cinnamon, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cloves, and one cupful of chopped prunes. Sift two cups of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and stir all together until well mixed. Bake in a loaf and cover with boiled frosting.

Virginia Sweet.—Cut sweet potatoes in slices and lay in a baking dish a layer well sprinkled with flour, sugar, salt and bits of butter; add another layer, season and cover the top layer with a generous sprinkling of flour and bits of butter. Cover with boiling water and bake in a medium oven.

Hot Slaw.—Shred cabbage very fine and drop into boiling water, cooking for five minutes; drain and season with a tablespoonful of chopped onion, a little hot vinegar and butter, salt and pepper, to be well seasoned. Let stand an hour and serve.

A cold slaw served in Mexico is another nice way of serving cabbage. Shred the vegetable and crisp it in cold water, drain and season with chili sauce, salt, a little horseradish, a dash of Worcestershire and a dash of cayenne.

MLLE. ALICE GEUBEL DE LA RUELLE.

By Siene Armstrong Harmon.

An eminent Frenchwoman now in America on a mission for her government is Alice de la Ruelle. In Washington, she has been received at the White House by Mrs. Wilson, has talked industrial education with President Wilson, and has been entertained by the Ambassador and Madame Jusserand at the French Embassy.

Over there in France, they speak of her as "une femme arrivee," or "a woman who has arrived." She is an eminent lawyer, and is the fifth woman licensed by the French government to practice the legal profession. She is in America, however, in the official capacity of Labor Inspector for the French government, having been sent here by her government to study industrial education and industrial work. After a year's close study of American methods, she gives it as her opinion that these methods of ours, despite their good points, are open to the charge of superficiality. She declares that she finds also, in many instances, a discrepancy between printed reports and actual conditions.

These criticisms, given in the frankest way, are those of a competent and disinterested woman. At any rate, there is nothing superficial, and nothing easy in the position which she holds in France. She is one of about twelve women appointed for life by the French government to watch over the conditions under which women and girls and children work. She has inspected thousands of factories, convents and schools in France and has full power to prosecute employers, and to shut down any shop which does not fulfill the laws and regulations of the country concerning women workers.

The method of appointment of labor inspectors in France is in itself enough to prove the thoroughness of French methods. When Mlle. Ruelle decided that she wished to exchange the privileges of society life for life of earnest achievement, her ambitions centered upon securing one of three vacancies then awaiting the appointment of labor inspectors. She began to study for the difficult examinations, or public competitions, which are held in France when the position of Labor Inspector is to be filled. After four or five months of tireless study, and indefatigable effort, she entered this competition with four hundred other women, many of whom had received doctor's degrees in science, art, or literature. The examination embraced a complete knowledge of industrial hygiene. She wrote a brilliant paper, and was one of three women appointed.

"I have been a society woman," I was a college woman, and a professional woman," she says. "Yet, though I can say I have been in all classes of society, the woman I like best because I think they are the most moral, the most clever, and the most interested, are the women engaged in industrial work."

Mlle. Ruelle is a member and officer of a number of important societies in France for the securing of industrial legislation. She is also the author of several bills that have been passed in that country, and has recently framed one for women in industry that has been introduced for her by her friend, Maurice Faure, vice president of the Senate.

Household Hint

THE TABLE.

Scallop of Sweet Peppers and Ham.—Cut each pepper lengthwise into quarters and remove the seeds carefully, lay in iced water for fifteen minutes, then drain. Cut each quarter in half. Butter a pudding dish and put in the bottom of it a layer of minced ham, on top of this a layer of cut peppers; sprinkle thickly with fine crumbs and moisten all thoroughly with seasoned stock. Now put in more ham, another layer of peppers and crumbs liberally dotted with bits of butter and sprinkled with salt. Bake, covered, in a good oven for half an hour, then uncover and cook ten minutes longer.

Tomato Sandwiches.—Slice graham or whole wheat bread thin, pare off the crust, butter on one side, spread with minced ripe tomatoes, drain off the excess juice and sprinkle with salt, pepper and sugar. Serve at once. The tomatoes should be ice cold and minced quickly. They are delicious.

Queen Mab Omelets.—Beat four eggs, the yolks as smooth as cream, the whites to a standing froth. Into the yolks whip three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Mix all together, add a tablespoonful of thick cream, whip lightly and pour into buttered ripples, filling each half way to the top. Set in a pan of boiling water in a quick oven and bake five minutes, covered. Turn out on a hot platter, sift powdered sugar over them and serve at once.

Lemon Cake.—One cupful of butter, to and a half cupfuls of sugar, three eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately; four cupfuls of flour, one scant teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a little milk, one cupful of sweet milk, the juice and the grated rind of two lemons. Beat the butter and the sugar to a cream, add the yolks well beaten, then the milk and the soda. Then add two cupfuls of the flour, the juice and the grated rind of the lemons. Mix again and, last of all, add the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Bake in a hot oven.

Jelly Roll.—Three eggs, one cup of sugar, one-half tablespoonful of milk, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, one cup of flour, one tablespoonful of melted butter. Beat the eggs until light, add the sugar gradually, milk, flour mixed and sifted with baking powder and salt then the butter. Line bottom of a dripping-pan with paper, butter the paper and the sides of the pan. Cover the bottom of the pan with the mixture and spread evenly. Bake twelve minutes in a moderate oven. Take from the oven and turn on a paper sprinkled with powdered sugar. Quickly remove the paper, and cut off a thin strip from the sides and ends of the cake. Spread with jelly or jam which has been beaten to consistency to spread easily, and roll paper around the cake that it may better keep in shape. The work must be done quickly, or the cake will crack in rolling.

Banana Souffle.—Peel and chop very fine five bananas. Into a pint of whipped cream stir five well-beaten eggs, then stir in quickly the banana pulp. Turn into a soufflé dish, bake in a quick oven until brown and light, and serve immediately with sugar and cream.

EVERYDAY TALKS FOR EVERYDAY PEOPLE

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

When we purchase clothing we generally buy for the wearing quality, the warmth of the garment, and ability of the cloth to serve us best for the money expended. We seldom apply the same reasoning to buying foods, though we should. It is just as necessary, even more so, to know how to buy foods wisely; how to be a good shopper for the table as well as for the larder.

From Barrow's "Principles of Cookery" I copy the following day's ration for one person. Meat and fish, twelve to sixteen ounces; one egg; butter, one to two ounces; milk, one gill to one pint; sugar, two to three ounces; dry fruits, one ounce; legumes (dried peas, beans) one ounce; fresh vegetables, six to eight ounces; potatoes, eight to twelve ounces; flour and grain, twelve to sixteen ounces.

Where there is just a pair of hands to do all the work in the house one is apt to think on scanning this day's ration that one simply cannot do all that is necessary to give a growing family the proper kind and amount of food daily. But the task is as would seem at first glance. It dwindles as you take hold of it; dwindles right down to the way your mother used to do, and she found time to do things right, as is proved by a healthy person you are today.

A reserve store of canned goods is a real aid to have in the home, and if you are pressed time for a can room—your emergency shelf and a quart of milk will make a nourishing cream soup of peas, corn, tomatoes or beans.

The top of the milk may be used for coffee or cereal if butter or other fat is added to the soup.

If the average family doubled their milk supply they would be taking a long stride in the right direction and with a trial of using it as a food they would be convinced of its food value and economy, for it is economy to use plenty of milk in a home where there are children.

It is claimed that twenty-five cents a day will give one person an abundance of wholesome satisfying food; that life can be sustained on half that amount and that twice that amount will not nourish more completely if it does provide luxuries and foods out of season.

The personal opinion of any one person is not given in the above; it has been taken from a table of foods and their costs. But of one thing we can all be certain. This amount will never suffice unless we women learn how to buy unless we go often to the market and see the bargains that groceries have as well as other stores.

Meat should be of the table once a day. This need not be the expensive food we make it, as cheap meat is also nourishing. We need not buy the best every day, neither do we need to buy the cheapest every day; let us plan so as to have our meat bill so much, then learn how to stay inside that and give your family a dollar's worth of meat for a dollar spent for the same. In proper cooking can truthfully make a club steak look like far less than thirty cents.

A MODERN GERMAN TYPE

By John Henry Newson

"Home of Character" No. 124

This is a type of cement house having the feeling of modern German work. The absence of the porch, the bay window on the center of the gable in the front, and the treatment of the stair bay give this house the character and snap which has made it so popular with our friends. The walls being built colored with the exterior woodwork stained brown and sash painted white, together with the green slate roof and red brick foundation, compose a color scheme which is livened by a touch of brilliant color in the flower boxes at each side of the entrance stoop.

Cost $5400. Can be built for from $4100 to $6000.

Any Gazette reader intending to build a home in the near future and desiring further information concerning this or any other "Home of Character" should take advantage of the special service Mr. Newson is prepared to render Gazette readers without charge to them.
